Leadership, Values and Governance

Duration: One week

Preamble

Today managers face increasing global economic, social and political challenges. Developing an effective leadership team capable of responding to these challenges is critical to a public organisation's success. Success depends upon having a clear strategy and a culture that empowers managers to use their skills to effectively nurture the development of future leaders. This leadership training program enables participants to acquire the broad, integrated knowledge and global perspective required to successfully lead their organisations

Focus Areas:

Leadership and Change Management

Corporate Governance and Values

Business and Government in an international Economy

Course Deliverables

By successfully completing this course, participants will be able to:

- build and implement innovative management system
- recognise and meet the challenges to leadership;
- develop a compelling leadership style;
- lead change;
- create an environment of ethical responsibility
- leverage technology and global issues stemming from government policies
- understand convergence among nations competing in the world economy
- examine sustainability

Who Should Attend?

The programme is designed for senior managers of public organisations, across a wide range of industries and functions. Candidates should have significant responsibility for strategic decision making, hold leadership positions and be identified as part of the company's succession plan.

Those expected are: Managers of government agencies, or general managers of business units and senior functional heads.

Training Methodology

The mode of instruction is a combination of theoretical sessions by subject-matter interspersed with discussions and practical exercises. We encourage participants to come with their challenges so that we can resolve some in class.

Our instructors have in-depth knowledge and working experiences while having obtained specialised and world-class education and training.
